Firm Foundation

Nothing Can Undermine It in Norway.

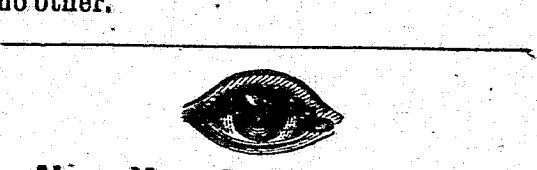

People are sometimes slow to recognize true merit, and they cannot be blamed, for so many have been humbugged in the past. The experience of hundreds of Norway residents, expressed publicly through newspapers and other sources, places Doan's Kidney Pills on a firm foundation here.

O. I. Pitts, blacksmith, Main St., Norway, Me., says: "Several years ago I had kidney trouble. I had caught cold in my kidneys and there were pains across the small of my back. The kidney secretions bothered me and were distressing in passage. When I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply at Stone's Drug Store. The use of a few boxes cured me. I will always recommend this remedy." (Statement given July 24, 1908.)

LATER TESTIMONY When Mr. Pitts was interviewed by one of our representatives, on April 30, 1912, he said: "Doan's Kidney Pills always give me great benefit. I am glad to recommend them again." -24-25-

The Failure Talks.

I reckon I'm a failure, as we reckon failures here. The world may have me listed as a dud; there's any laurel resting lightly on my brow. An' I've not been asked to join a stylish club. I am not called on at banquets for an after dinner speech.

I'm a stranger in a dozen miles I roam; But I've got five or six youngsters an' each one of 'em a peach. An' I get a lot of comfort out of home. I reckon I'm a failure, coz my bank account is small.

An' I've always had to struggle with my back against the wall. Coz I never found the way to gettin' rich. When I die I'll be forgotten save by just a very few. An' I'll go to sleep among the "countless dead."

But I've got a few friends round me that I know are staunch and true. An' my nights are never filled with thoughts of dread. I reckon I'm a failure, in the worldly sense of wealth. An' I never done a single glorious deed. But I'm resting on my laurels, I still possess my health.

An' I've got my little family out o' need. An' I've got my little family out o' need. An' I've got my little family out o' need. An' I've got my little family out o' need.

Though I've failed to get the money that I per- haps I might have had, I have found a heap o' happiness in life.

Written for the Advertiser.

The Fulfilling.

I tried, ah how I tried! To make the most of my smiles and tears, To reap no vain regret.

Life, I have prayed, For only life's sweetest wine, To have the drops for other lips, Such selfish prayer is mine.

And from the head-lands high, I sought the loveliest seat, And now I know 'twere vain desire, Not for his children meet.

For the turrets so dazzling bright, Those phantasies of color and light, That pleased the eye with a lustre grand, A saddest tale unfold.

And yet these rainbows strong, For what is good and true, All of our dearest happiness, Will be led to me next year; Some day, some happy dawn, Our hearts shall be entwined, And true desires, lost to us now, Shall be fully gratified.

Ah! deem not hopes are lost, For for a space they return more sweet Than the breath of the dewy rose.

JENNIE E. SNOW KIMBALL.

PARIS.

On Tuesday, June 11th, at four o'clock at the West End Collegiate church, West End avenue and Seventy-seventh street, New York, Marion Parry, daughter of Edward Lowden Parry, was married to William Roy Smith, professor of English at Bryn Mawr.

After the ceremony at the church, about sixty guests assembled at the home of the bride's father, 412 West Seventy-ninth street, for a small reception.

Miss Parry comes from a well-known Maine family, and has spent her summers since her childhood at the family homestead at Paris Hill. She is a graduate of Bryn Mawr for seven years, has been the head of the department of Economics at the same college. She received her degree of Doctor of Philosophy at Bryn Mawr in 1906.

Mr. Smith is a native of Texas. He graduated at the University of Texas, and later took a post graduate course at Columbia, and went to Bryn Mawr as the head of the history department on completing his work at Columbia.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith after a brief trip in Europe, will return for the early fall to Paris Hill to commence the building of a summer home.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, it is like a rubber band being drawn too tight, and the result is, unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be lost forever; which is a sad and often a permanent condition.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Sermons of a "Layman."

PART I. Some Things Not To Do. To make excuses by laying blame to somebody besides yourself.

To complain of the weather. To always be prophesying ill. To tell your aches and pains. To make fun of people.

To say sharp, sarcastic things to people who matter who they are. To brag. To do all the talking. To be impolite. To be jealous. To speak cross words. To gossip. To listen to gossip or ever repeat it. To be the bearer of ill news. To always have your way. To get in the habit of disputing. To speak of others' faults. To answer a cross word. To be "tempery."

PART II. Things Good To Do. To be kind. To be comfortable to live with. To look on the bright side. To enjoy living. To forgive. To make others happy. To like your "job."

To do your work thoroughly. To take advantage of spare moments. To be careful of your good time. To know how to have a good time. To go occasionally to new places. To see the beauty that is always around you in your own home—in the blue sky, the floating clouds, the sunsets, the pine trees, the rugged hillsides, the sandy lake shores, the dim glimpse of mountains, the red-cheeked apple, and all else so common to our eyes that we do not see their wonderfulness and beauty.

To wonder at the beauty and symmetry of our own bodies and how they grew. To wonder at the soul and mind of us looking at through our wonderful eyes. To not "worry in well doing," and not fear.

Bridgton Academy Graduation.

The graduation exercises of Bridgton Academy for 1912 occurred Wednesday, June 13th. Mrs. Jordan's orchestra furnished music and the chapel was filled to overflowing.

Seated on the stage were the trustees, faculty and class of 1912. The parts were very well given, especially those that had been drilled by the efficient teacher, Mrs. W. P. Scribner.

Faculty—Principal S. M. Hamilton, T. J. Leonard, Frances P. Kidder, Mrs. S. M. Hamilton, Edith M. Knight, Sadie W. Scribner.

The marshal of the Seniors, Hubert Hazen Barker, led the following line of teachers: Ernest Albert Bean, Donald Stearns Bartlett, Florence Lillian Dudley, William Wallace Eustis, Grace Elizabeth Evans, Rose Marion Evans, Gladys Mildred Gilman, Mary Helen Jordan, Edith Gertrude Willett, Susie Legalle Moxey, Albert Leighton Robbins, Dolores Blanche Marie Simonault, George Frederick Simpson, Harriet Josephine Smith, Percy Lewis Smith, Annie Johanna Wentworth, Ronell Ellis Wright, Chester Thomas Winslow.

The diplomas were conferred by Fred W. Dudley, principal of the Hollis, N. H., High school.

The alumni dinner was an informal affair, but nevertheless very pleasing.

At the base ball game with Westbrook Seminary, the B. A.'s were defeated 2 to 0.

The concert in the evening was by the Temple Quartette of Lewiston with Grace Chamberlain of Boston, reader. Principal Hamilton has been in the school only one year, but he is meeting with much success. He is a graduate of Bowdoin in the class of 1900, and came to Bridgton from South Portland.

MOVE ON NOW!

says a policeman to a street crowd, and whacks heads. "Move on now," says the big, harsh, mineral pills to bowel congestion and suffering folks. Dr. King's New Life Pills don't bulldoze the bowels. They gently persuade them to right action, and health follows. 25c at The Noyes Drug Store.

Herbert Swan and Tom Heath are working for Will Gill. Mr. Gill is having his barn taken down, and Mr. Carter of Bethel is to haul the same to Bethel from the Hotham place.

Bald Heads.

More Women are Bald Than Men, Says Authority.

This is a startling statement but it's true according to an article published in a standard magazine this year.

One thing is certain. PARISIEN SAGE will surely prevent baldness by stopping the hair from falling, but it won't grow hair after the head is bald.

Ladies look after your hair, destroy the dandruff germ. PARISIEN SAGE and dandruff will disappear. It stops scalp itch over night and is guaranteed to be the most refreshing, refined and agreeable hair dressing that can be obtained. Sold by Noyes Drug Store and druggists all over America for 50 cents.

Pay Your Bills By Check and Check

Your Bills When Necessity Arises.

When you pay a bill by check you have an indisputable receipt which can be referred to at any time as an evidence of payment. In case a dispute arises over a payment, the check quickly settles it as it shows the date of payment and bears the endorsement of the party you paid. It is impossible for anyone to compel you to pay a bill twice when you confront him with your check payable to his order and endorsed by him.

ISN'T THIS ONE THING, THE FACT THAT YOU CAN ALWAYS REFER TO A BILL YOU HAVE PAID AND SHOW A RECEIPT, A STRONG REASON WHY YOU SHOULD OPEN AN ACCOUNT WITH THIS STRONG NATIONAL BANK AND PAY ALL YOUR BILLS BY CHECK?

No. XII.

An Unmarked Grave-Listening to "Grand Young and Old Men"-Back to West Fryeburg and Her People-The Ballard Family-A Visit to the Old Graveyard-The Ancestral Home of the College.

In my last West Fryeburg letter I wrote of Frank Colby and of his death and burial in a strange land and amongst strangers. I am spending a month taking treatment of a chiropractic doctor of the practice in Lincoln, Neb., and one day last week I was my privilege to visit the Lincoln cemetery and the spot where on the 19th day of November, 1877, Frank Colby was laid at rest. The grave is unmarked but is between two marked graves in the I. O. O. F. lot. The ground is neatly kept and the location one of the best in the cemetery. Had Frank not been an Odd-Fellow, without doubt he would have been buried in the Potter's field, and his eastern friends might never have learned any of the particulars of his sad death at the early age of 25.

Last week I attended the Men's Religious Forward Movement at Lincoln, at which 800 plates were set, and at which W. J. Bryan, Lincoln's "Grand Young Man," presided as toastmaster. The last two Sundays I have attended divine services at the Little M. E. church at Normal near the Bryan home, and where Mr. Bryan always attends church when at home. Another treat that I enjoyed was listening to a political speech by Wisconsin's "Grand Old Man," La Follette. Last Friday I listened to a political speech by Sec. Fisher in behalf of President Taft; and Thursday of this week Teddy R., who is chasing his hat around the ring, will be here on his "whirlwind" campaign to save the country from going to the dogs.

And now I will continue my sketch of the West Fryeburg people. Dean Ballard has been highly honored by the people of his native town, having served them nine years as selectman, seven of them serving as first selectman. He has also served one term in the Legislature and one term as county commissioner. His substantial farm buildings are amongst the best in this section of the town. He has been three times married, and what seems strange to some of his wives have died of that "great white plague," consumption; while no member of his large family has ever been affected in the least by that dread disease.

Of his seven children I have already written of Fannie and Ray. Charles was married and engaged in a profitable manufacturing business near Portland. While on a fishing excursion on a lake in the backwoods of Maine, the latter part of the past winter, he was drowned by the breaking up of the ice. The particulars of his sad tragedy I have never learned only as published in the ADVERTISER at the time. Emma married Elmer Walker and lives with her husband on the Edwin L. Walker place in West Fryeburg. She is a member of the West Fryeburg Stirling Woman's club and is one of its active members. Louise, Ida and Alice, the three younger girls, live at home and keep house for their father, and at the same time are taking advantage of the splendid opportunity of getting an education, which they enjoy in the public school and Fryeburg Academy.

Nearly 70 years ago, Uncle George and Aunt Susan Ballard began their residence on the Ballard farm. Aunt Susan was one of my elder half sisters, and one that I dearly loved. She was a dear, good Christian lady. She had two lovely and lovable daughters, Elizabeth, who died in 1888 at the age of 14, and Fannie, who died in 1872 at the age of 24. After their death and that of her husband, and especially in her later years when the infirmities of old age began to creep up on her she longed and prayed that her Father in Heaven would call her to his heavenly home, that she might meet the loved ones that had gone before her. She passed to the higher life about three years ago at the good old age of 93.

She was a member of the Stirling Woman's club, and I think it was when she was 90 years old that a Boston paper gave a sketch of her life, with her picture and spoke of her as the oldest club woman in America. On the celebration of her 97th birthday, her niece, Calista Andrews of Danvers, Mass., started a movement to raise from amongst the relatives a dime from each person, each dime to represent a year. These dimes and the following poem written by Miss Andrews were presented to Aunt Susan on that memorable occasion:

"A spank for every year you know,"
We got when we were small;
Then one big spank to make us grow,
Was given to cap them all.
But you're all grown, and a better seven,
And no more whippings need
To help you on your way to heaven,
But just the loving kindly deed.
Your birthdays are no longer new,
They've come too many times,
And I've nothing else to give you,
So you count these dimes.
One for every year, you see,
A few to heap the measure
With that which yet can only be
The token of love's measure.
Some rolled along from way out West,
To Boston by the busy ocean,
And all sorts to do their best
In telling of your warm devotion.
And peaceful days all palm and bright
With memories sweet to cheer;
God's love and care your way to light
We give for you this year.

As we pass on down the street we pause for a little while at the West Fryeburg burial ground, where for more than a hundred years the honored dead have been laid away. There have been a few valuable monuments erected among them those of Henry D. Hutcheson, Abraham Andrews and the Stevens monument. The large proportion, however, are of marble. Many, in fact, all of the older stones, are of blake slate, while those erected in recent years, are of polished granite. Many of the latter are fading, while the marble stones have become stained until some of the inscriptions are hardly legible, while the inscriptions upon the ancient slate-stones are as plain as when first placed there. In the last few years the ground has been greatly beautified, as well as enlarged. A handsome iron fence with stone posts has been built along the front, and I understand that since I visited the cemetery last August, that side and end has been torn down and a new and handsome fence built in its place.

A little father down the road we come to the old ancestral home of the Colbys, now occupied by David Hill and wife. Mrs. Hill was the third wife of the late Albert Colby, who was the son of James Colby and grandson of Robert Colby, who was, I think, the original proprietor of the farm. Mr. Hill lived for many years on the adjoining farm in the house close to the Dean Ballard house, which he still owns and where he raised a family of seven children all of which have grown up and moved away. He is well passed his four score years, and I

CHICAGO MERCHANT MAKES STATEMENT.

After Spending Thousands of Dollars and Consulting the Most Eminent Physicians, He Was Desperate.

CHICAGO, ILLS.—Mr. J. G. Becker, of 134 Van Buren St., a well-known wholesale dry goods dealer, states as follows:

"I have had catarrh for more than thirty years. Have tried everything on earth and spent thousands of dollars for other medicines and with physicians, without getting any lasting relief, and can say to you that I have found Peruna the only remedy that has cured me permanently.

"Peruna has also cured my wife of catarrh. She always keeps it in the house for an attack of cold, which it invariably cures in a very short time."

found him hale and hearty for a man of his age. He is also a veteran of the Civil war. Mrs. Hill is some years her husband's junior, and is a woman of superior culture and education. On this old homestead farm Mr. and Mrs. Hill are passing the evening of their lives in peace and comfort. They keep a few cows, a nice lot of hens, and their old faithful horse, Nimrod, 22 years old. They have a large orchard, some of the trees of which must be over one hundred years old, while both fathers have large groves of white pine timber growing, which will in time become very valuable. A little way back from the house there is a fine grove of white pine trees growing. The trees are perhaps a foot in diameter and are beautiful. Mr. Hill told me that she and her first husband, Albert Colby, set them out with their own hands when living there some twenty or twenty-five years ago.

Some sixty years ago when a small boy I visited at the Colby home. My Uncle James and Aunt Mary Stirling were in the prime of life. My grandfather, Robert Colby, was then living, and I remember him well. A few years before, and soon after my father's death, Grandfather and Mother Colby visited with us at our home at Swan's Falls for several weeks. Two incidents of that visit were deeply impressed upon my boyish mind. One was my first and last chew of tobacco, and the other was when mother went away on a visit and left grandmother to get dinner, and she made an old fashioned rice pudding with raisins in it.

The Colbys were an honest, hard working, economical and religious class of people. I think that most of the original stock were Methodists, and know that my mother and her four sisters were splendid cooks and housekeepers. Robert Colby raised up a family of seven children, Mary, Ann, Abigail, Betsey, Hannah, James and John. Of four these I have already written. Ann married David Sawyer, and in her life there was much of tragedy. She and her husband were for many years confined in the insane asylum at Concord, N. H. About 1860 she became sane and returned to Fryeburg where she supported herself by doing housework, weaving, etc. A while later her husband escaped from the asylum and returned to Fryeburg, and kept house for a year or two. About 1864 they spent the summer at our home at Lovell Center where Uncle Moses cleared several acres of woodland and sowed it to spring rye in the fall, insisting that he was going to make winter rye of it.

A few years later Aunt Ann again lost her mind and followed him back to the asylum, where she died not long after.

On one of my visits to Maine years ago, J. Nathan Heath of Green Hill told me that he had seen alive at Moose Sawyer was when he passed through there on his way to Uncle Ike Andrews' at Center Lovell. He was told that none of the family lived there but went on his way. Several years later a human skeleton was found way back in the woods near Fryeburg village. There was no doubt that of Uncle Moses. He had been heard to say that he would die before he would go back to the asylum. He had built a rude shelter of bark and leaves in which he crawled, and where he died. A sad story of an unbalanced mind and of a sad life.

John Colby died before my time. He was married and had one daughter who lived away. When I was a boy I remember of her visiting her Fryeburg friends, James and Mary Stirling, and succeeded his father on the home place. He had five children, three boys and two daughters, Richard, Albert, John, Lucetta and Ann. Of Richard I have already written. Lucetta married Jewett Haley and of her I shall write later. Of Ann I have already written.

Albert was three times married. His first wife was Mary S. Dresser of Lovell. He was a man of keen intellect and of rather an eccentric character. He lived for many years in Boston and Lowell, Mass., where he kept a large book store and published and sold many books, some of them of his own writing. One of them a history of the Bible, another The Road to Heaven and Hell, and sketches of his life, written by himself, from which I make a few extracts. He says:

"I was born in Fryeburg, Oxford county, Maine, Friday morning, Jan. 12, 1827. My birthplace was but a few rods from the New Hampshire line and a part of my father's land was in New Hampshire, and for months together of my early life, I have spent my days in New Hampshire and my nights in Maine. God made the two states one; and the artificial line made by man, which divides Conway, N. H., from Fryeburg, was once supposed to be several miles west of its present location; and many of the leading citizens of Fryeburg's early history really lived in Conway, N. H. Portland is the natural seaport of the larger part of New Hampshire. And if the long hoped-for millennium ever comes, artificial boundaries, human laws and all taxes will be abolished, and God's will then will be done on earth as it is in heaven; for if all men were true Christians, no human laws or taxes would be needed, but voluntary contributions would supply all the wants of society."

His three sons John, Nathan and James were young men of fine promise, but they all died young. John was a young man of fine ability. He wrote a Fryeburg Academy centennial poem. He became a Congregational minister and for awhile, I have been told, was pastor of one of the leading Congregational churches at Des Moines, Iowa. But his health failed and he resigned. His church was so anxious to have him continue with them that they voted him a

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the skin, or if the child reaches an advanced age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. Swamp-Root is sold by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.
